GAVE HIS MONEY AND LIFE.

A Massachusetts Milk Dealer
Murdered by Highwaymen.

LOWELL, Mass., Sept. 12. Roy Foster, a farmer and milk dealer of Burlington, Mass., was murdered about midnight on Saturday evening by two highwaymen at Billerica Centre, a highwayman Mr. Foster came from Boston to Billerica Centre by train last night, and started to walk to his home in Burlington. While on the way he was held up by three men, one of whom was identified as Mr. Foster, one of the former, which amounted to between eight and ten dollars, then came back to Billerica Centre where he notified Constable Livingston. The latter, with two friends, immediately pursued him to the place where he had been overtaken, overtook the robbers. Shots were exchanged, one of them taking effect in Foster's head at the base of the brain, killing him instantly. The robbers then made their escape in the direction of Woburn. A party of men from Billerica Centre returned to Billerica Centre and secured a fresh team and started in pursuit but at last account nothing had been heard from him. The highwaymen had been shooting all along, so that robbery was evidently a motive. Billerica Centre, famous as being to their special prey, and when they fled, pieces of harness were found scattered along the road. Mr. Foster was about 45 or 50 years of age and leaves a wife, two daughters and a son. Medical examination of his body was not made by his permission the body was taken to Foster's home in Burlington.

These exercises over, the encampment went into executive session and the delegates settled down in their respective lodges to discuss the various questions of national importance. The closest attention was paid to the annual lengthy address of the Commander-in-Chief which touched upon a large number of topics. His remarks on the pension issue were repeatedly interrupted with applause.

Mr. A. M. Adams' examination was concluded. He said in substance that Mrs. Gougar, though she used strong language in her address, did not, he could recall, say anything harsh against any other person.

James H. Robbins, a strong temperance advocate, of Cambridge, Mass., was the next witness and corroborated generally what Dr. Miner had said.

Edward T. Aiken, also of Cambridge, testified to the same effect admitting that Mrs. Gougar's speech was well received.

The Cross Injustice

of the veterans was brought to our attention and prompt action was taken. As the shot fired at the bridge at Concord in the revolutionary war was heard around the world, so the firing of the gun at the encampment, the Commander-in-Chief was instructed to make a test case in the courts of the United States as soon as possible after my sickness I called a meeting of the executive committee of the council and the plaintiff as a coward or any other unpopular variety of manhood.

Dr. William B. Elliot, of Attleboro, testified that he had held conference with Mr. Gougar on the subject of his trial in fall of 1891. A request for the nature of the conversations by Mrs. Gougar's counsel was vigorously objected to by the counsel for the defendant and Judge Putnam ruled the question out.

The journal then opened the case. Mr. Buswell in his opening address to the jury said that the portion of the defendant's letter which is considered libelous was but a short scrap at the end of a long letter concerning the subject of attacking the defendant's personal interests in the heat of the Presidential campaign. The letter, he said, must be taken in its entirety. He said he would show that in 1891 Mrs. Gougar was a professional speaker stamped India for the lecture platform, and in 1892 speaking in Mass., Boston, and in 1893, speaking in Worcester, Mass., for Prohibition. Her denunciation of men and candidates, he said, was unexampled. She called the inauguration of President Harrison an "inauguration of hell." She was a member of the convention at Minneapolis as the scour of debauchery and bribery. The President was a thief, Vice President Morton a scoundrel, and Mr. Morse an unmanly person doing falsehoods and abuse.

By an act of Congress, the pension is not much better right. I have been doing my best to find out what that does for the pensioner. As he is examined, re-examined, reduced and dropped the same as before, I am unable to say what advantage the act is. Some after the examination of Congress, the act of reducing pensions, stands but the President in his message stated that "Thousands of neighborhoods had their well known pension frauds." Extra examiners were employed and nearly all other work in the pension office done by the cheaters, instructed the Judge Advocate General to draw on the Quartermaster General for three hundred dollars. I understand the case is still pending.

Whig and Courier.

BY BOUTELLI BROTHERS.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelli Brothers, and communications intended for publication should be addressed to Whig and Courier.

THIS IS DAY, SEPT 15 1864

39,168.

We publish to-day nearly complete returns from the entire State and they fully confirm the announcement contained in the dispatches of our Whig. I usually mention namely that the Republicans of Maine had won the most remarkable victory in the history of the party in the tabulated returns given us with it. Cities and towns are included in the vote of which stands as follows:

Cleaves, 69,451
Johnson, 30,283
Republican plurality, 39,168

The vote in the remaining towns is still out, will not materially change the figures. If they voted as they did two years ago, the total result would give the Democratic vote in the State, 20,718; the Democratic 32,022 and a Republican plurality will equal if it be exacted. The gubernatorial majority of the Republicans have also a very heavy majority in the State, elected every county officer, a full Senate and a majority in the House of Representatives. The most striking in that body stand 117 Republicans to 11 D. Democrats. The total Republican vote exceeds that of two years ago notwithstanding the fact that that was a Presidential year.

The significance of this overwhelming popular victory cannot be undervalued. It means that the voters of the State, after having seen the Democratic party weighed in the balance, after experiencing the disastrous effects of Democratic rule for a year and a half have risen in their might and entered a protest so emphatic that it is impossible to disguise its meaning. There was no question of Party supremacy to arouse the voters of the State. Republican success was sure, and even the Democrats conceded that it was merely a matter of majority. The people understood this, but were determined that the country should know who ruled, regarded the Democratic party and its tariff smashing programme.

Richard Vermont have pointed the way. Now let the Northern States well be rid of that popular and great bulwark of the House from the control of the party of destruction.

As Goes Maine

More is yet to be done by the example of Vermont, but bettered it. The over whelming victory in Vermont is succeeded by a victory yet more over whilngot in Maine. The Democratic vote in the East and the Republican vote has been between the two the Republican plurality is estimated at from 000 to 000.

This is the victory which was predicted before the election by Republican authors. But there the major Democrats believed in a week and three that by which the state was carried.

Two years ago, unlike Vermont, Maine almost went to the polls, a State in which Democrats six and eight years ago were clamoring a fighting chance. When the Republican vote was defeated by the great defeat the Republican candidate for Governor was defeated. Five years ago the Democratic party had a vigorous fight in Maine.

Now we see that year. The rise of popularity of the Democratic party from the election of Cleveland overwhelmed the Republicans. The early estimate of the Republican victory was there a slight division on the subject of Hawaii, in which Mr. Bouell naturally indulged and to which he was added by the very remarkable statement of Mr. Harold M. Scallan, a clever and off-hand and a life-time Democrat who was too much of a patiot to remain any longer loyal to an Administration which lowers the flag and humiliates the American name. The result in Maine was a clear-cut Republican victory over the tariff issue. It will be impossible for the Democrats to make any thing out of it. Mr. Reed had a tremendous victory in a majority of nearly 8000. Gov. McKinley was there and spoke of the tariff and both are happy, and both are looking toward the White House. But that is another story.
